Paula's Story - Bio

Paula Brown

Storyteller and master of flow: Author, designer, illustrator, animal communicator, feng shui

From an early age, I had a natural attraction and strong connection to nature and animals. I have spent much of my life enjoying the land by hiking through wilderness, and living and being on both my grandparents' farms. Loving, caring and interacting with animals, being in nature...always being curious as to the natural flow of the world and finding out the "whys" of what made up my world. How could a person appreciate and make the world a better place by "listening" and telling the "story" of nature and animals was my constant question. This ability to feel and heal nature's true flow and "talk" with almost any type of animal was a natural motivation for me to become a professional animal communicator. Being interested and responsive to the "feelings" of environment and the movement of "chi" or energy in animals drew me to become an avid student and practitioner of feng shui. My love, passion, and spiritual connection with animals melded beautifully with my knowledge of Black Hat Feng Shui principles, and lead me to illustrate and author "Fur Shui" (1st edition by Lyons Press, 2008, sold out, 2nd Edition by Paula Brown 2013). Fur Shui applies Feng Shui Black "Cat" principles (my own definition for animal "chi master know hows"...story-telling in a humorous and light hearted approach to feng shui) to the furrier species, reflecting the laws of feng shui to guide you and your animal toward a happy, healthy, and balanced home for all.

My original career path hails from more than 20 years experience in Advertising and Design as an award winning Art Director and Creative Director within and consulting for major ad agencies on both East (Boston) and West coasts (Seattle and Los Angeles), such as Arnold and Company, Ingalls, Olgilvy One, Mc Cann Erickson, DDB, and others. I became a consultant of creative "flow" and I thrive on creating purposeful positive "stories" for new business. I have been and part of teams that ignite and birth new ideas that became sought after brands for marketing and advertising clients such as Columbia Tri Star, Fox, and NBC, and various companies in Japan. My heart's desire has been uncovering the "emotional" flow of a client's story or brand and expressing this in visual form. That search for the pure concept and emotional basis or "heart" of a product or person has always been the genesis of my own creative branding boutique, personal expression in art, visual story-telling, and in all I help and do!

For the past 10 years, I have become a healing storyteller, listening to the flow of my own heart. My love of animals and ability to connect with them, along with my keen curiosity about how the heart connects energetically, led me to apply my "gift" in a new career path as an animal communicator. Having a deep sense of compassion along with the ability to quickly and deeply connect with the core of an issue, I have been encouraged to telepathically communicate with all types of species. To accurately communicate THEIR story to their people. My communication studies include being a student and graduate of worldwide known animal communicator, lecturer, teacher and author Carol Gurney. After studying with Gurney, I was invited to be one of her respected referrals, serving clients from around the world. My own business, The Heart of Conversation, grew and became my love.

I found that I could feel energy movement in animals, people and places with my body and with my dowsing talents. Finding energy “blocks”, I could help move energy, to clear the flow in body and chakra systems, resulting the use of these energy tools to heal animals and their environments. My interest in energy flow... moving “chi”, in animals is what inspired me to become an official “practitioner” of Black Hat Feng Shui. My studies include graduating from both The Black Hat School of the Tibetan/Hawaiian Institute of Feng Shui taught by Master Nate Batoon and the Qi Gong program at Emperor’s College of Traditional Oriental Medicine in Santa Monica. Attending the Flower Essence Society in Nevada City, CA fulfilled my desire for education, listening to, and applying the art of Flower Essence therapy to help bring emotional balance for animals. My love of horses and great desire to deeply understand and help equine led me to study at Monty Robert’s Flag is Up Farm in Solvang, CA. Mastering the “invisible” energy fields of emotions, finding the importance of smooth flow of energy in and around an animal’s body, getting stuck energy to move in homes and environments is my passion.

My study of Huna; the ancient Hawaiian energetic principles that express and include “Aloha”, have connected all my learning of communications, NLP, branding & visual story-telling, feng shui, dowsing, flower essences, animal body languages, all together. The ignition and connection to flow is my expression and that connection heals and inspires people to make their world a much better place.

I enjoy being an active member of the Society of Dowsters with the Ozark Research Institute, AK, love to speak for holistic and alternative healing organizations and I am rewarded by teaching animal communications, feng shui and huna.

Getting the stuck “unstuck”, finding flow and telling and communicating the true story of each being’s unique flow is my mission for animals, nature, and people, their homes and business. I love to learn... and be in my own flow of world travel, doing and viewing art, hiking and being in nature, boating, discovering what makes the world flow and communicate. I am nurtured by friends and associates who are life long learners and are passionate about the “whats” and “whys” of their purpose.

Some brief “facts” of my story:
